Searching for his own existence, one might do worse than to look for it among the majesty of purple mountains, beside lazy country roads, beyond the stone fence, or on a tranquil pond.

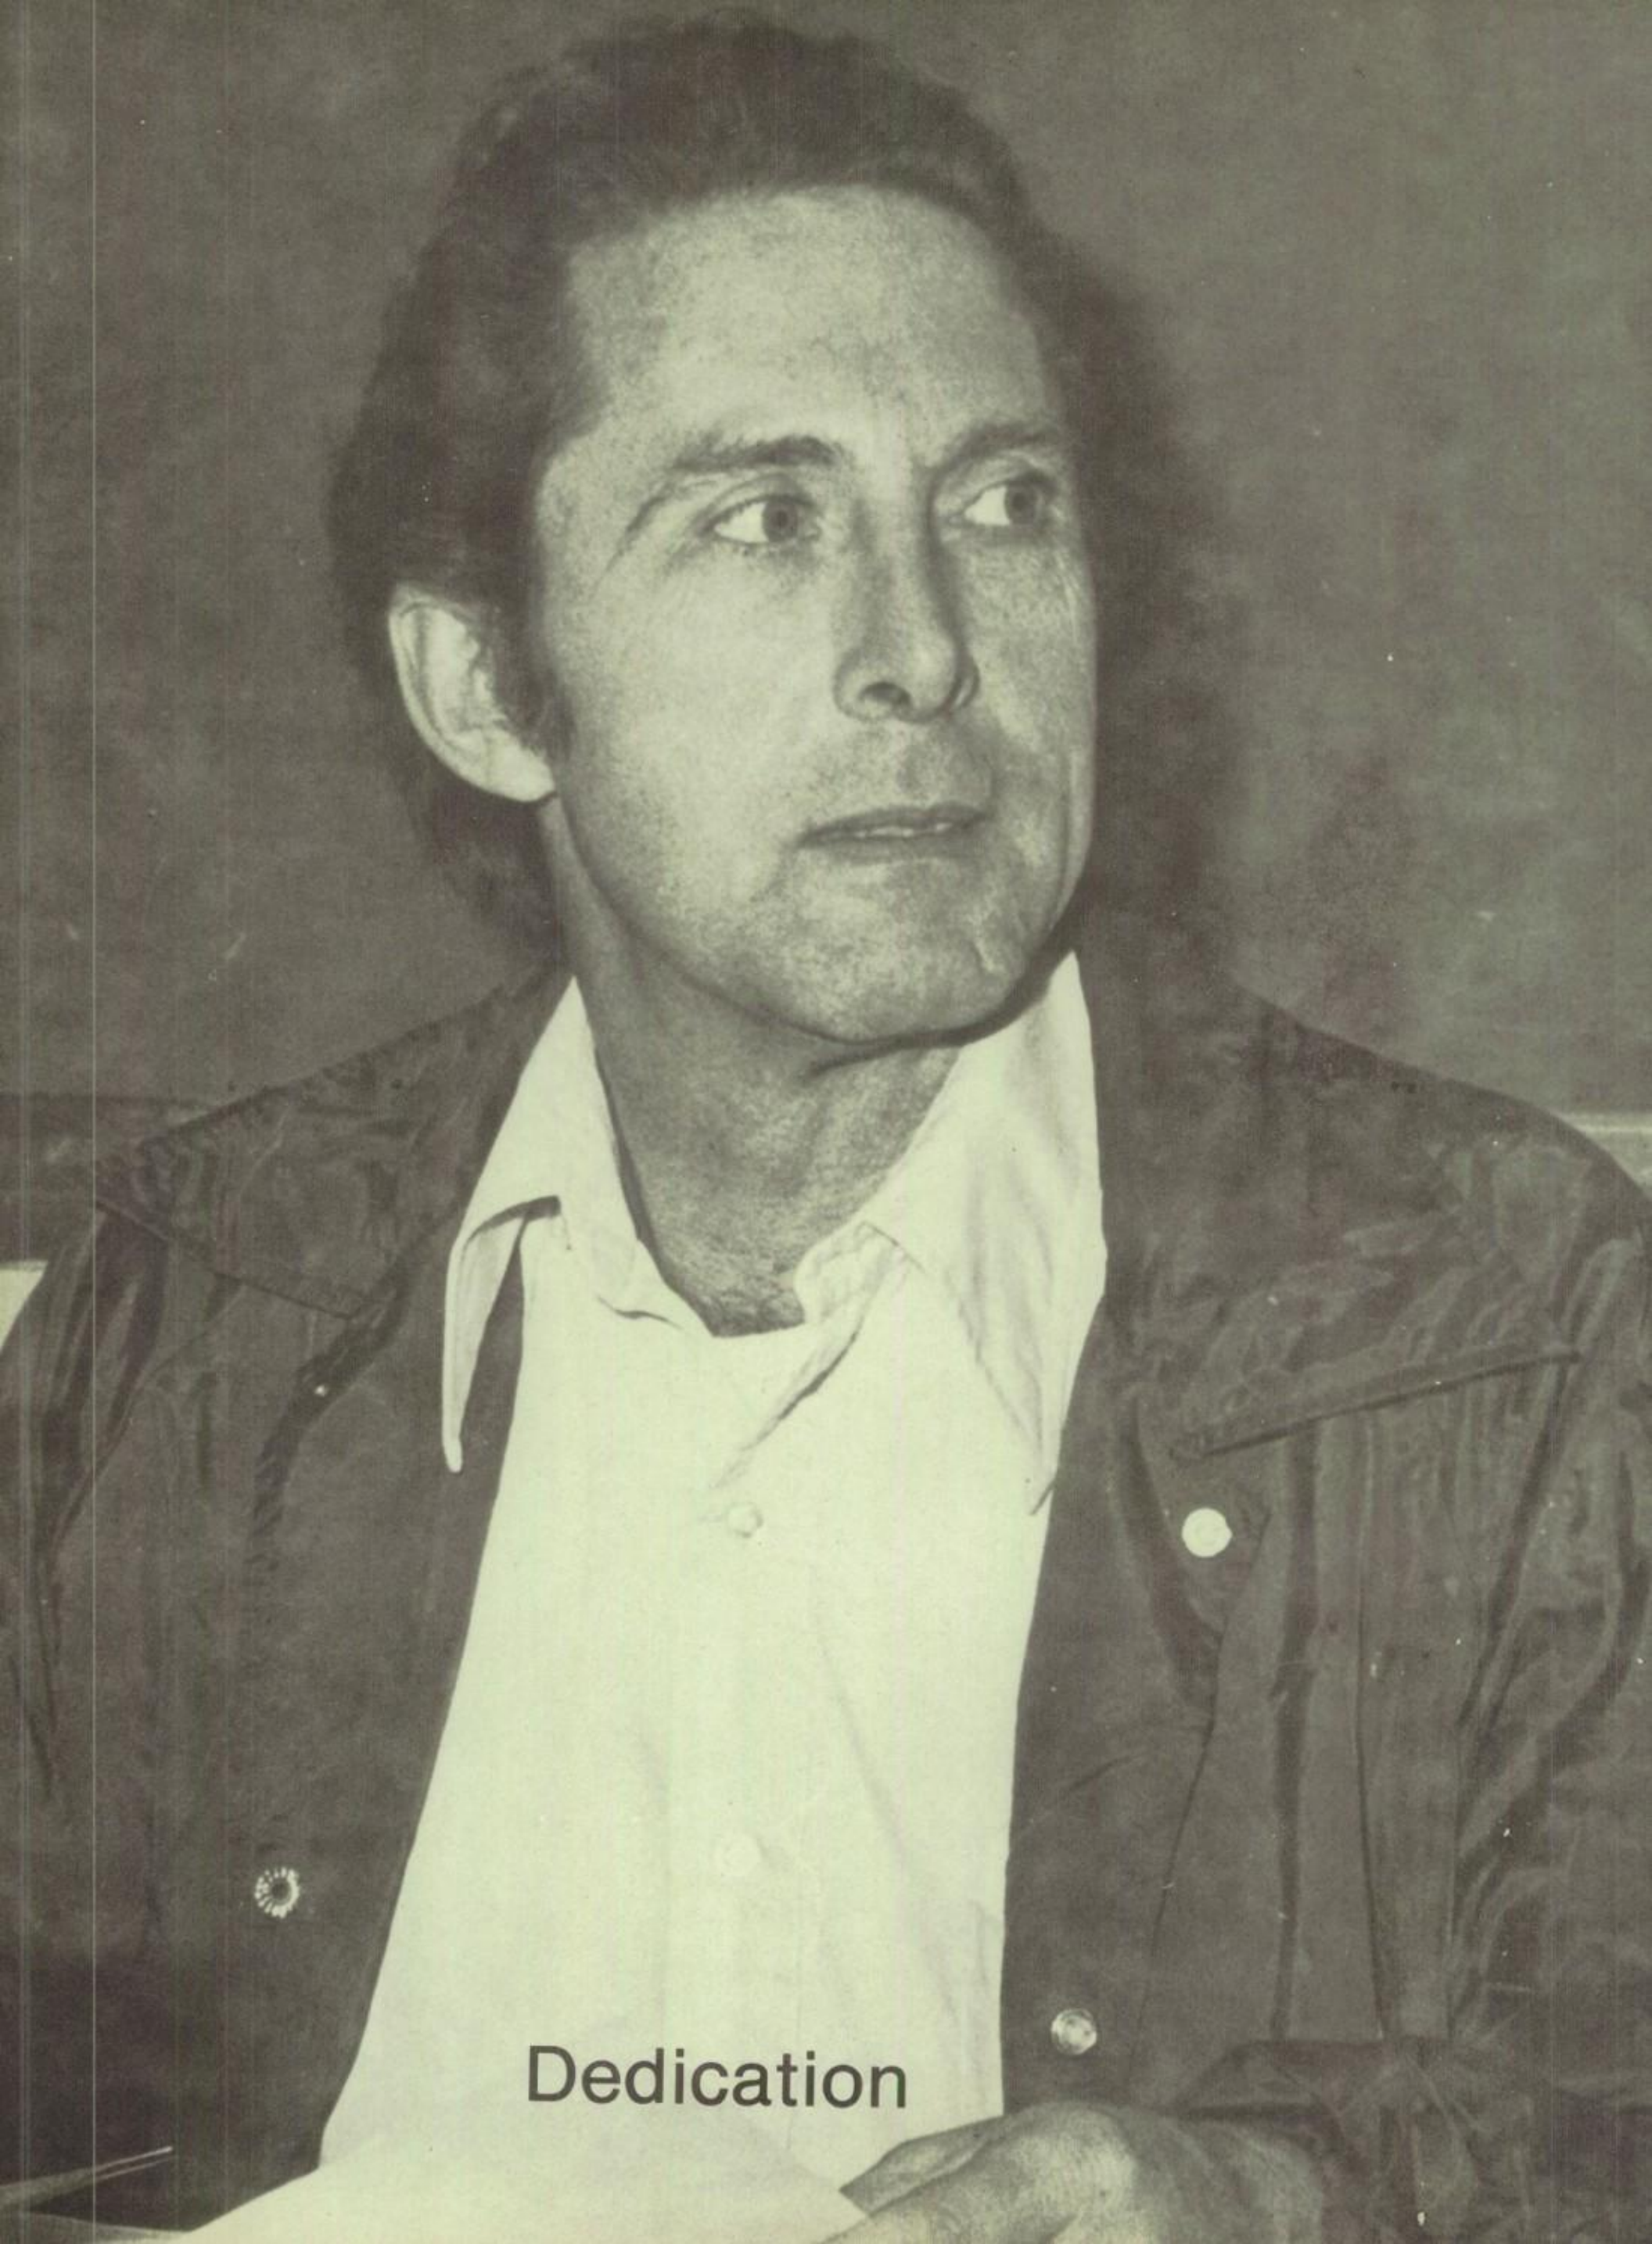

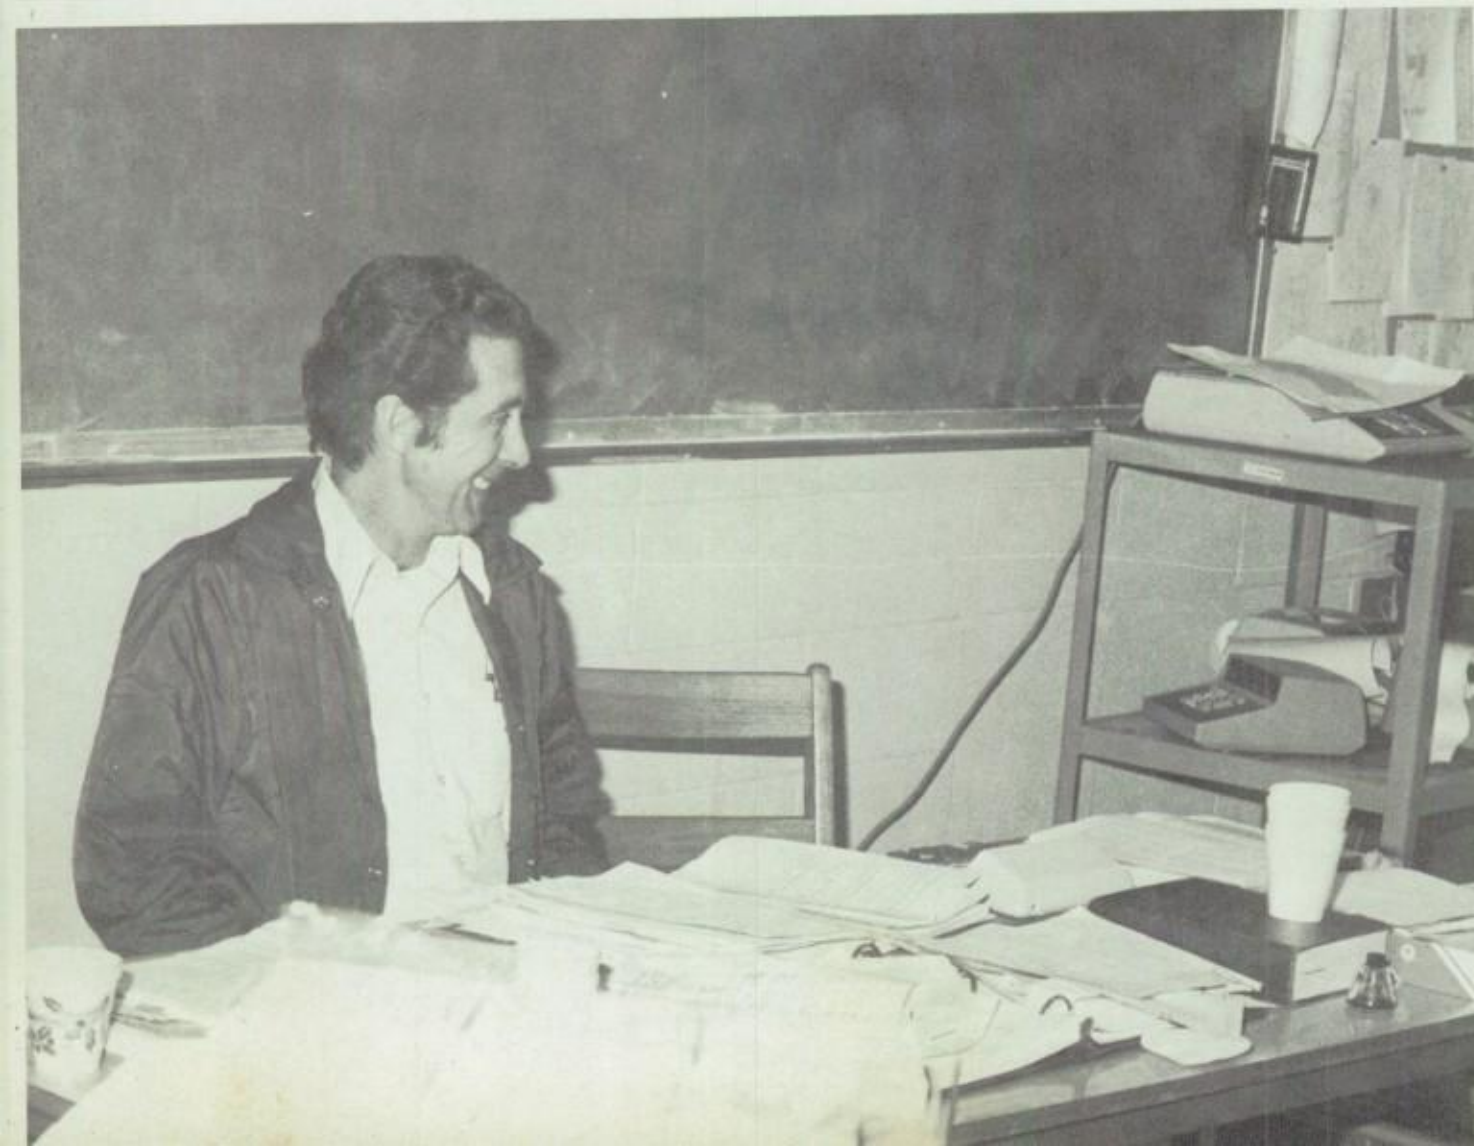

Dedication

In recognition of his years of faithful and dedicated service to North Iredell High School and of his concern for the health and welfare of all North students we proudly dedicate the 1979 CYNOSURA to Mr. Jerry Eades.

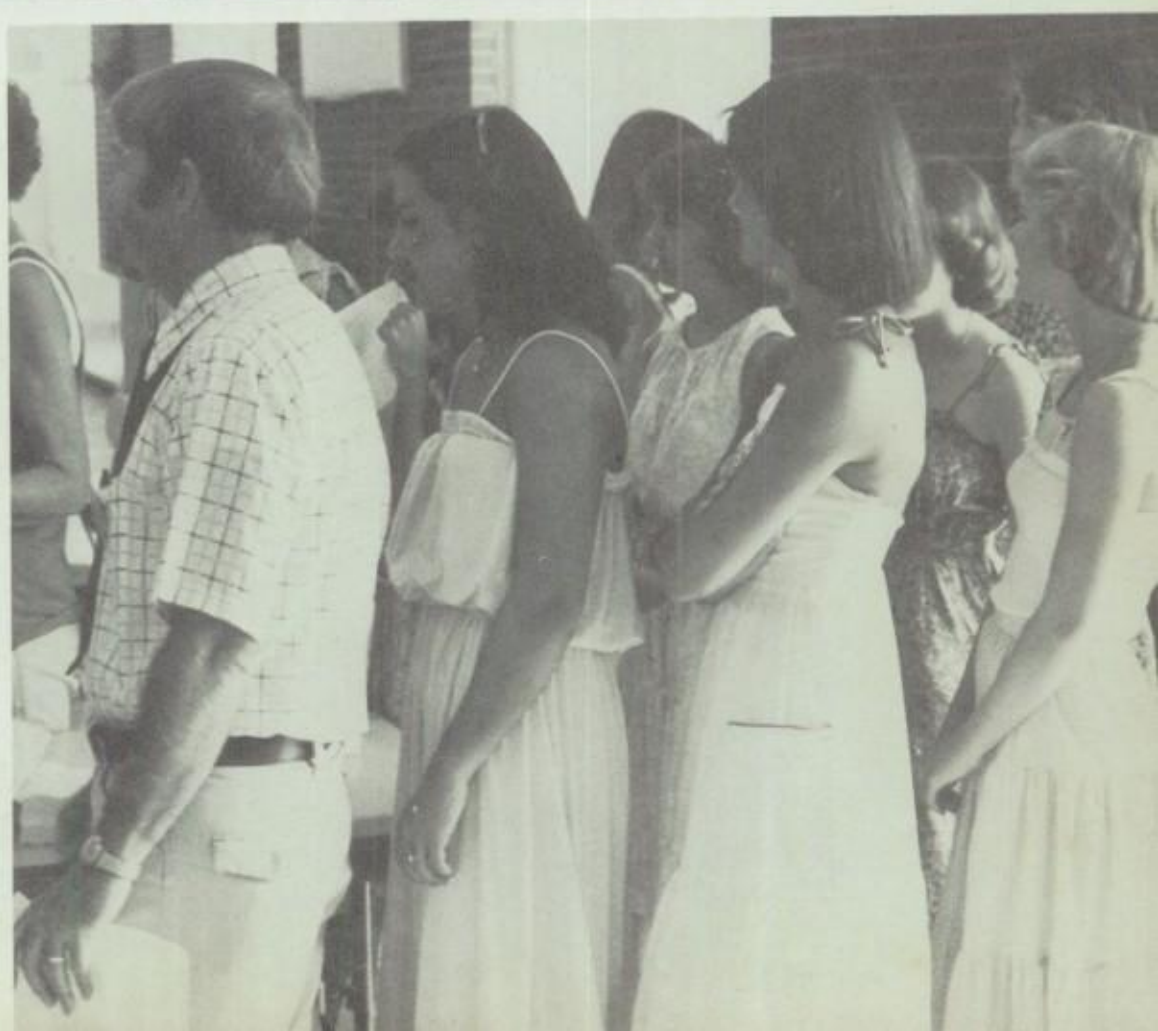

Fall Events

Keywanettes

The Keywanettes started out the year with a luncheon for the faculty. The Keywanettes also worked for the March of Dimes later in the year by selling balloons. North Iredell is proud to have a club that works for the community.

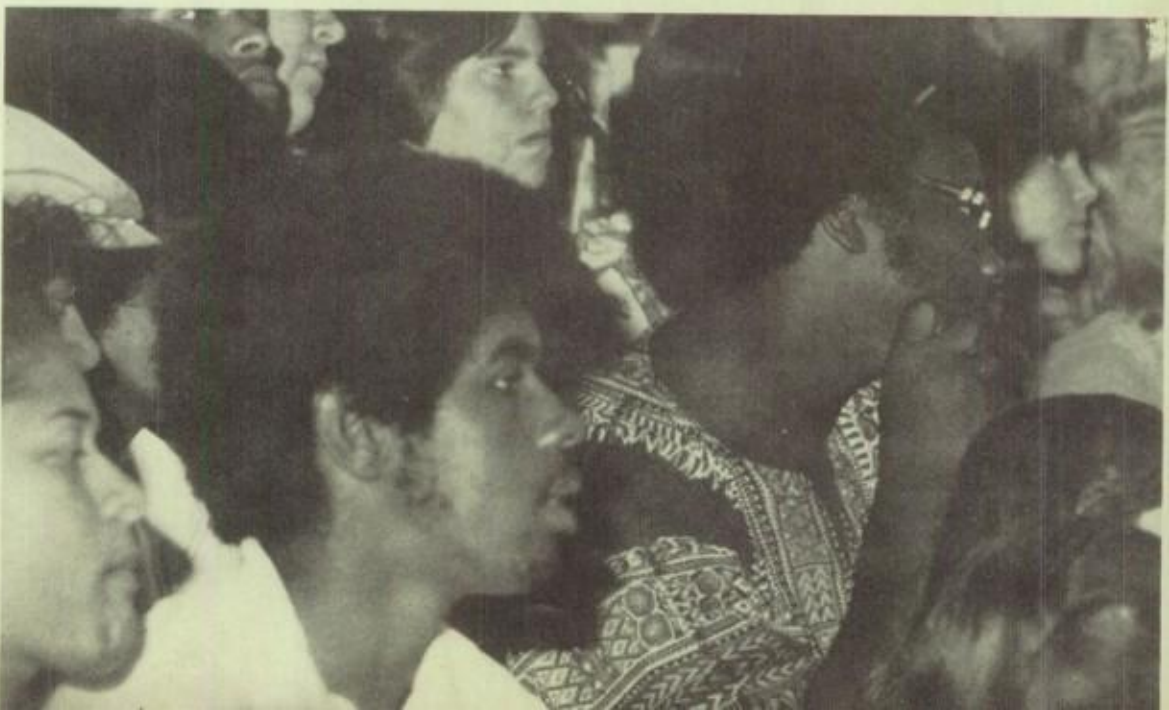

Student Skits Kickoff Magazine

The Magazine Drive got under way in high style with each class presenting an original skit. Commercials, movies, and magazine titles were among the themes presented. The winning skit, presented by the Seniors was a take off on the movie "Grease". Not to be outdone, the teachers even got in on the act. All in all, spirits were raised and magazine sales soared.

Drive

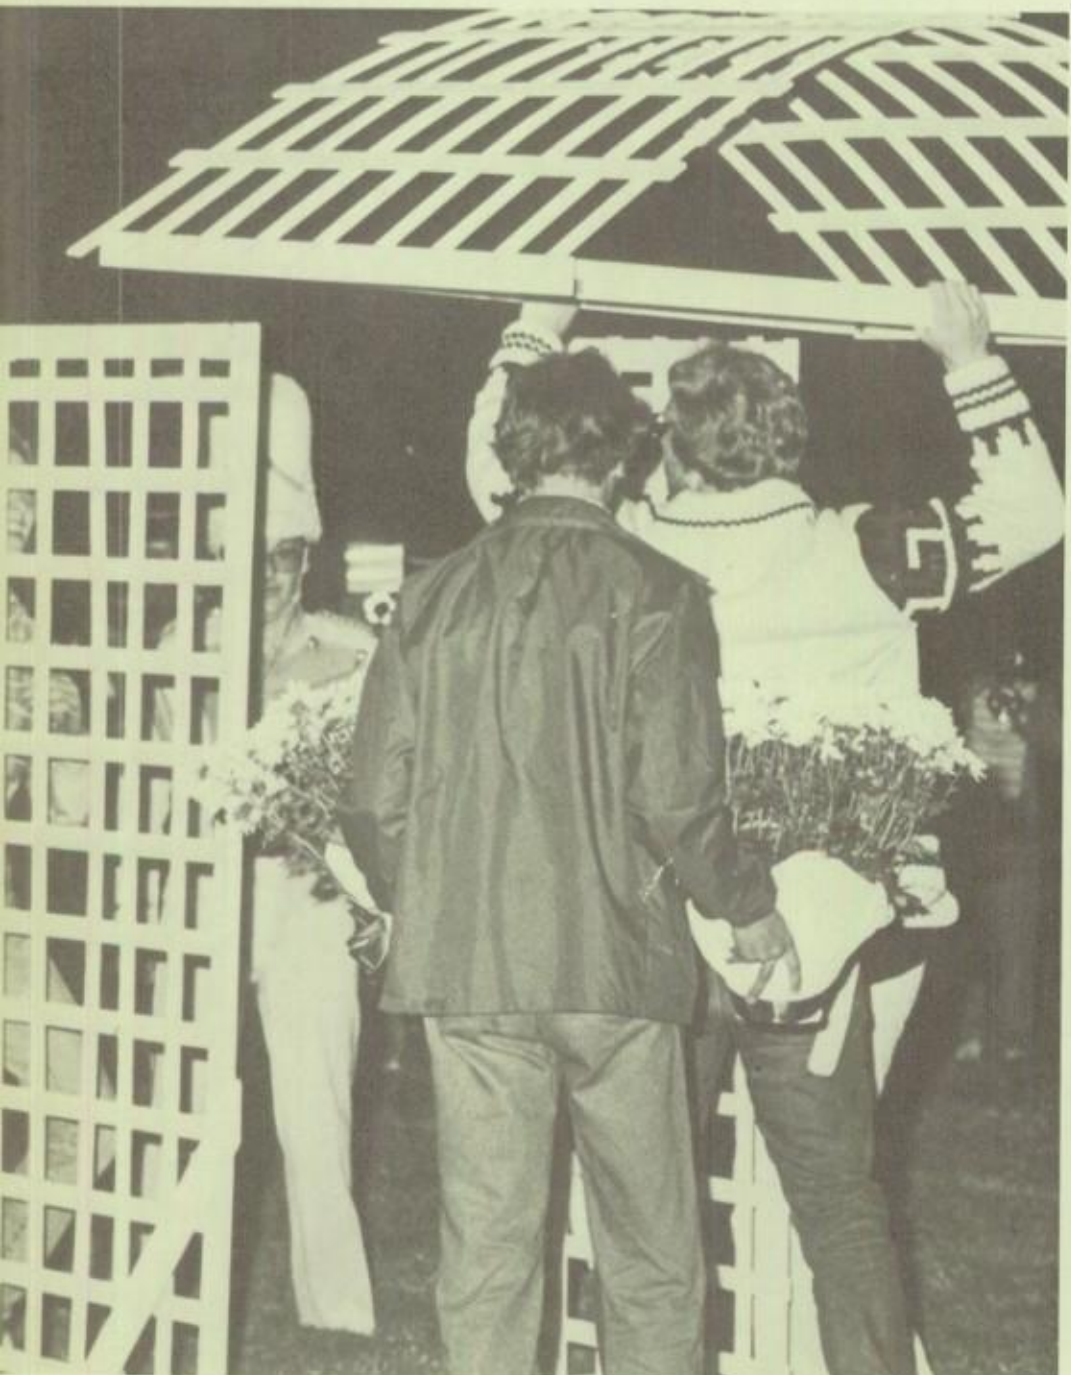

Drama '78 - '79

Fall activities for the drama classes involved a reader's theatre performance which was taken to Harmony, Central, Ebenezer, and Union Grove elementary school.

On Halloween, two monster melodramas were presented to the student body. They were entitled "Thursday Meets the Wolfman" and "Frankenstein Slept Here"

Seniors Schedule Five Projects

Senior Class Officers David Wooten, President; Malinda Jones, Secretary; and Scotty Elliott, Vice-President seem very involved in world affairs.

Senior class projects include: 1) winning the magazine skit with a thrilling rendition from GREASE; however, the seniors were somewhat less proficient at selling magazines, and their class ended behind the other three in total sales. 2) throwing together a float for the halftime show at Homecoming, but this effort did not win. 3) The big project was the Miss North Iredell Pageant which was, as always, a huge success. Profits from the pageant were used as a scholarship fund for the winners as well as to pay for the beautiful four-color photographs on this and the following fifteen pages. 4) a fun-filled weekend at Myrtle Beach following graduation; the class plans to tour the MB Ramada Inn. Seniors wishing to be part of the tour must be 18 on or before June 10, 1979. Those students needing ID's should see Scotty Elliott by June 1. 5) painting the water tower; those students wishing to help should see David Wooten.

Drama students brought joy to the residents of Brian Center with songs and short scenes.

Behind the scenes, much attention is given to directing and blocking.

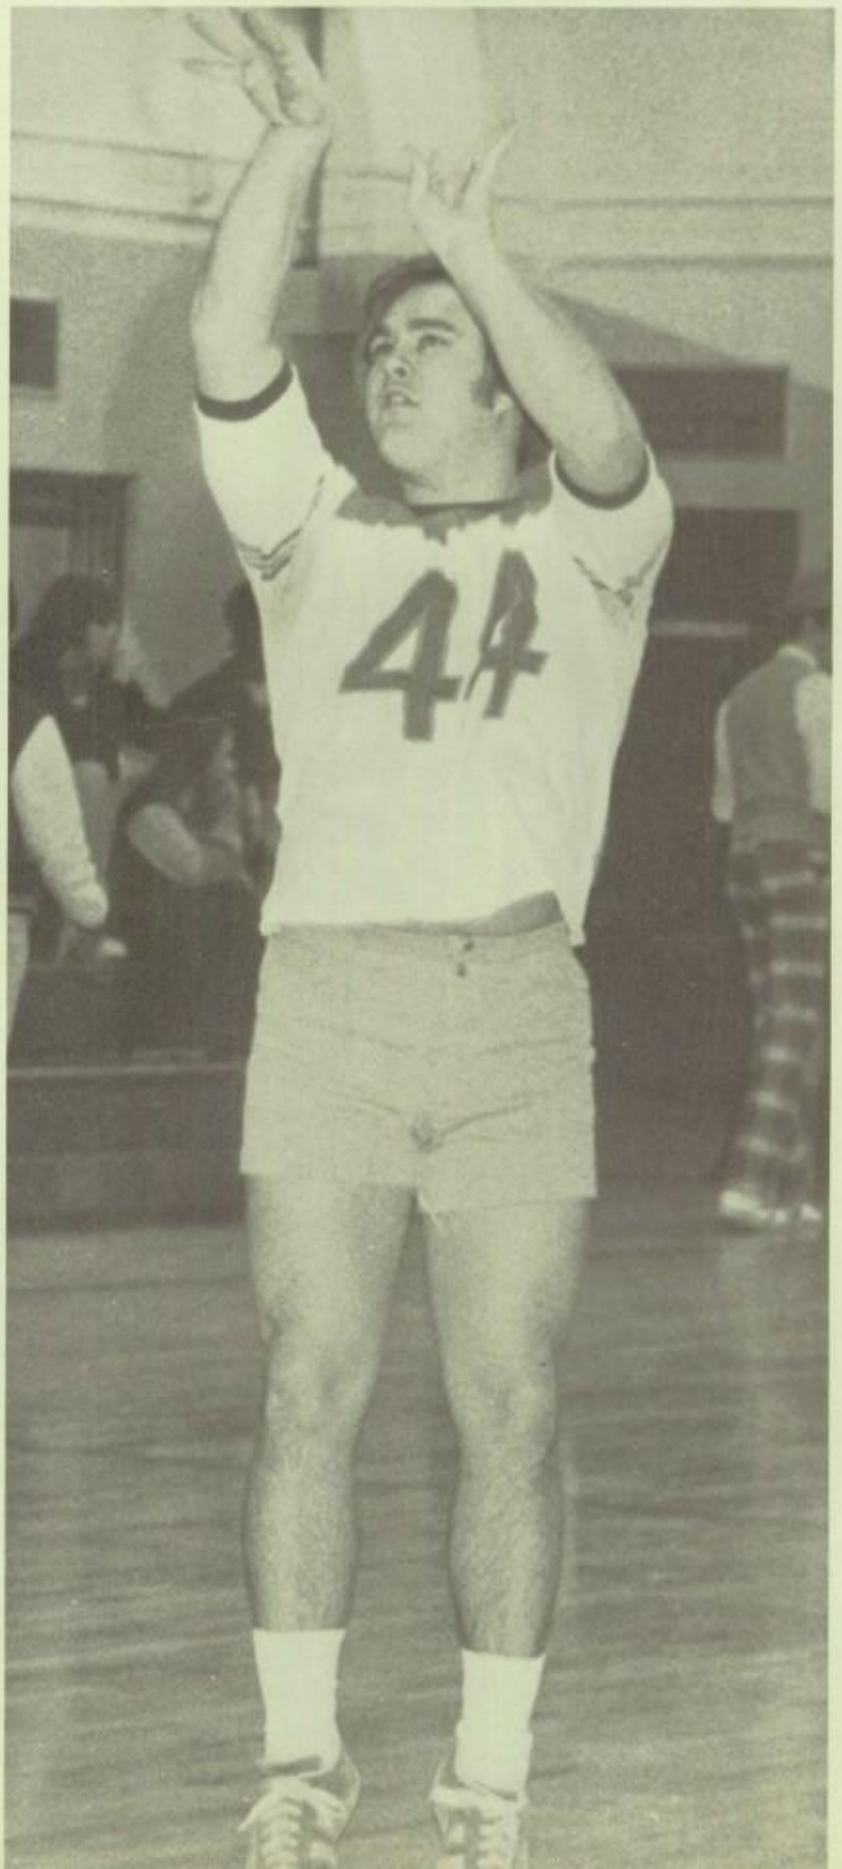

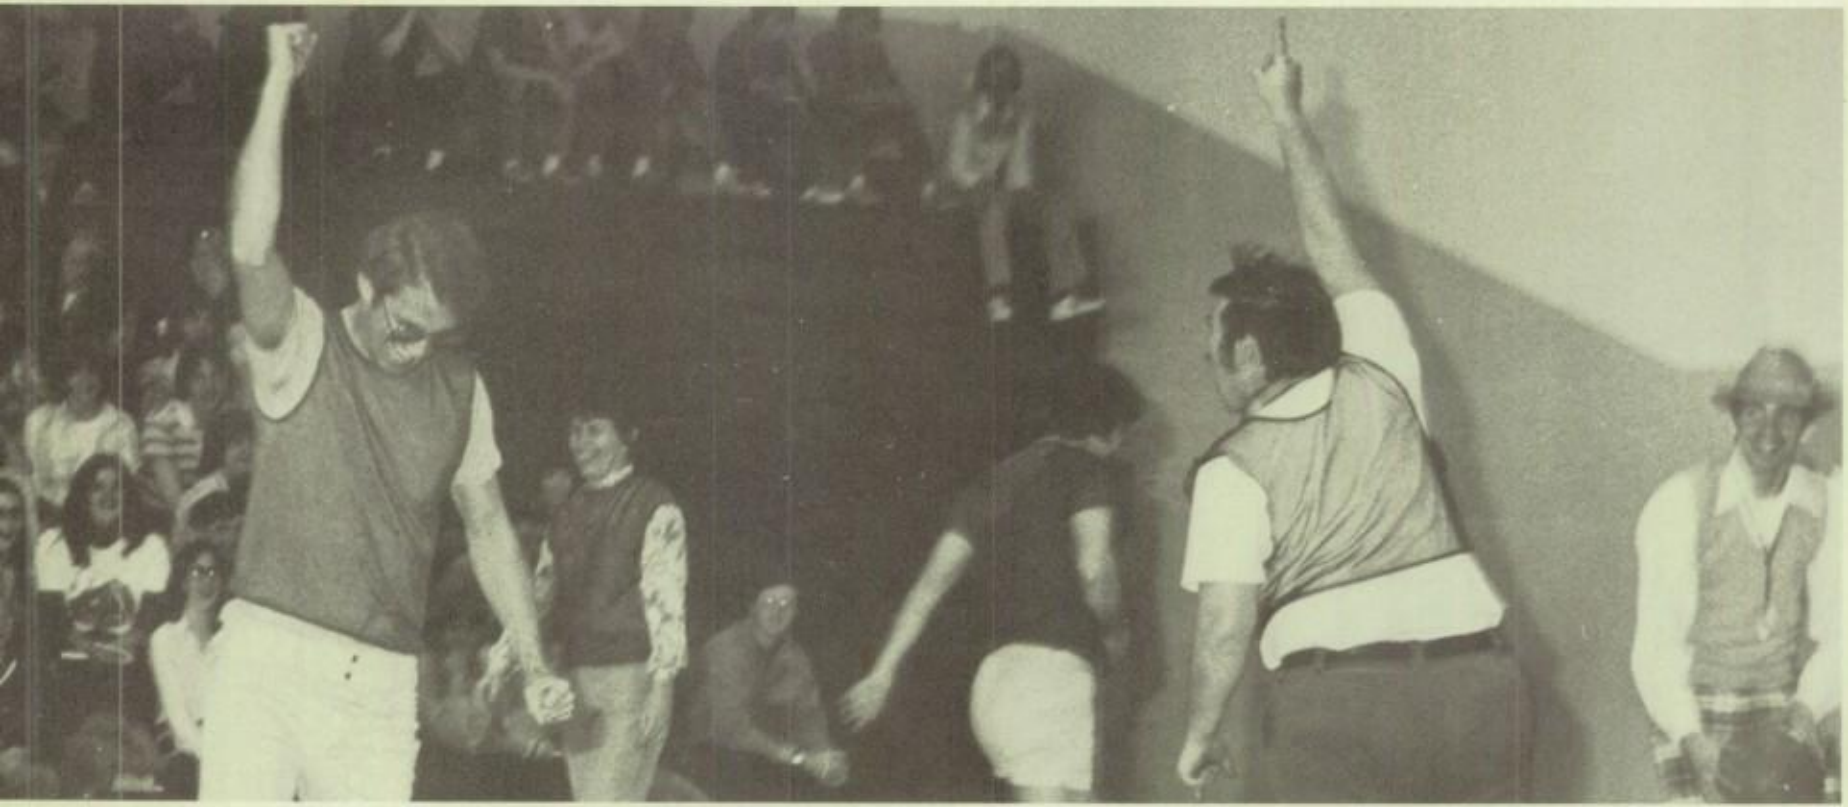

The Season to be Jolly

All over school, everyone felt the spirit of Christmas. As the FFA met a very special Santa (our own Mr. Hauser) the senior Humanities class held a toy drive for needy children like Mr. Stobbe. Even the teachers and their homerooms decorated their doors in a contest held by the FBLA.

The student-faculty basketball game was part of the schoolwide citrus fruit sale. The sale was sponsored by the Jr. Boosters to raise money for the athletic department. The game was one of the highlights of the year as the faculty overpowered the students.

Our Model United Nations

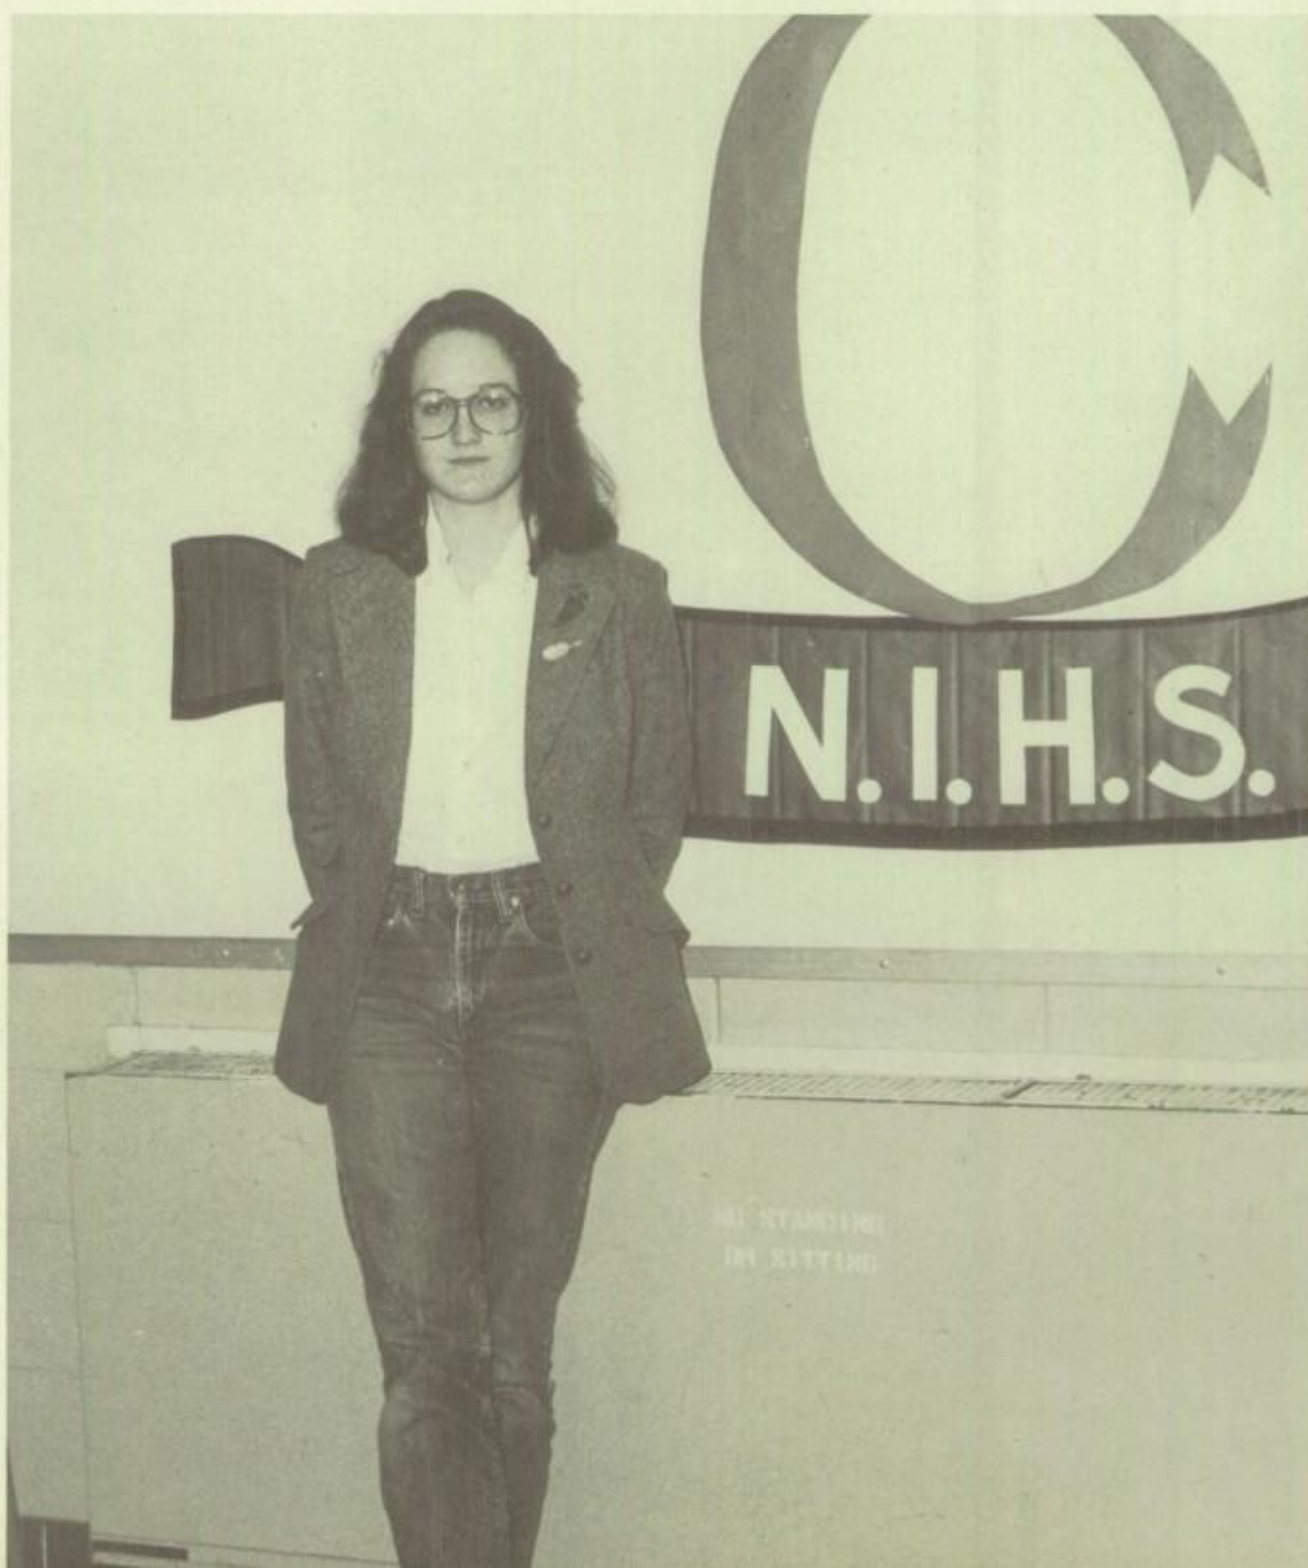

American Field Service Students At North Iredell

Catherine Lanquetin is North's first AFS exchange student from a European background. She resides with the Wilbur G. Foster family of Statesville. Her home is in Gray, France, a small town near the Swiss border. In France, Catherine has 5 brothers and 2 sisters quite a family compared to her 2 "sisters" and 1 "brother" here in the United States. After 6 months in this country, Catherine has finally adjusted to the fast pace of life and the leniency of the schools as far as respect and strictness in the classroom. The climate in North Carolina is different from her native climate, but she finds that she enjoys the balmy days in the middle of the winter, at which time she catches up on her tennis, her favorite sport. Other interests consist of listening to music, reading and eating American food.

Upon returning to France, Catherine will attend Dijon University in hopes of studying languages.

Lee Ann Foster, a Senior at North, was an exchange student to Turkey for 10 weeks this summer. The program she went through was AFS International/Intercultural Scholarships. She lived with the Suleyman Caner family in a small village on the sea of Marmara. Adding to the experience of traveling halfway around the world, Lee Anne enjoyed the Mediterranean climate, the unusual cuisine, visiting the ruins of Troy and Ephesus, experiencing the uniqueness of the Mostem culture, and just being in the land of bellydancing, sultans and camels.

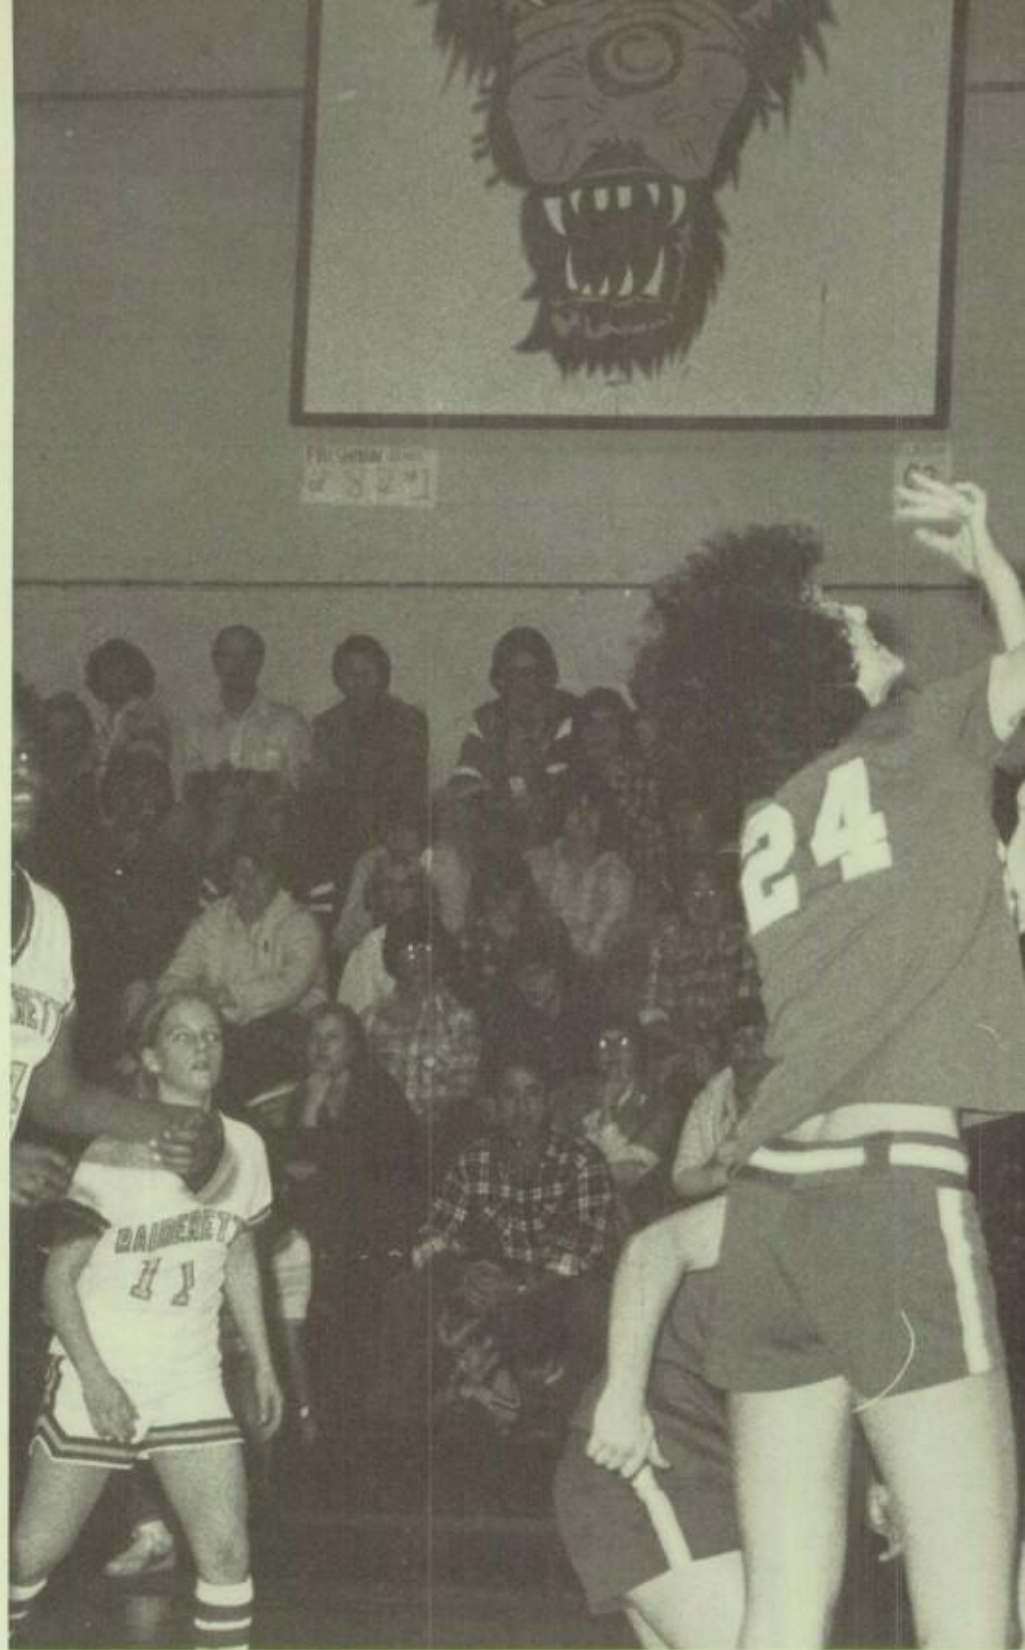

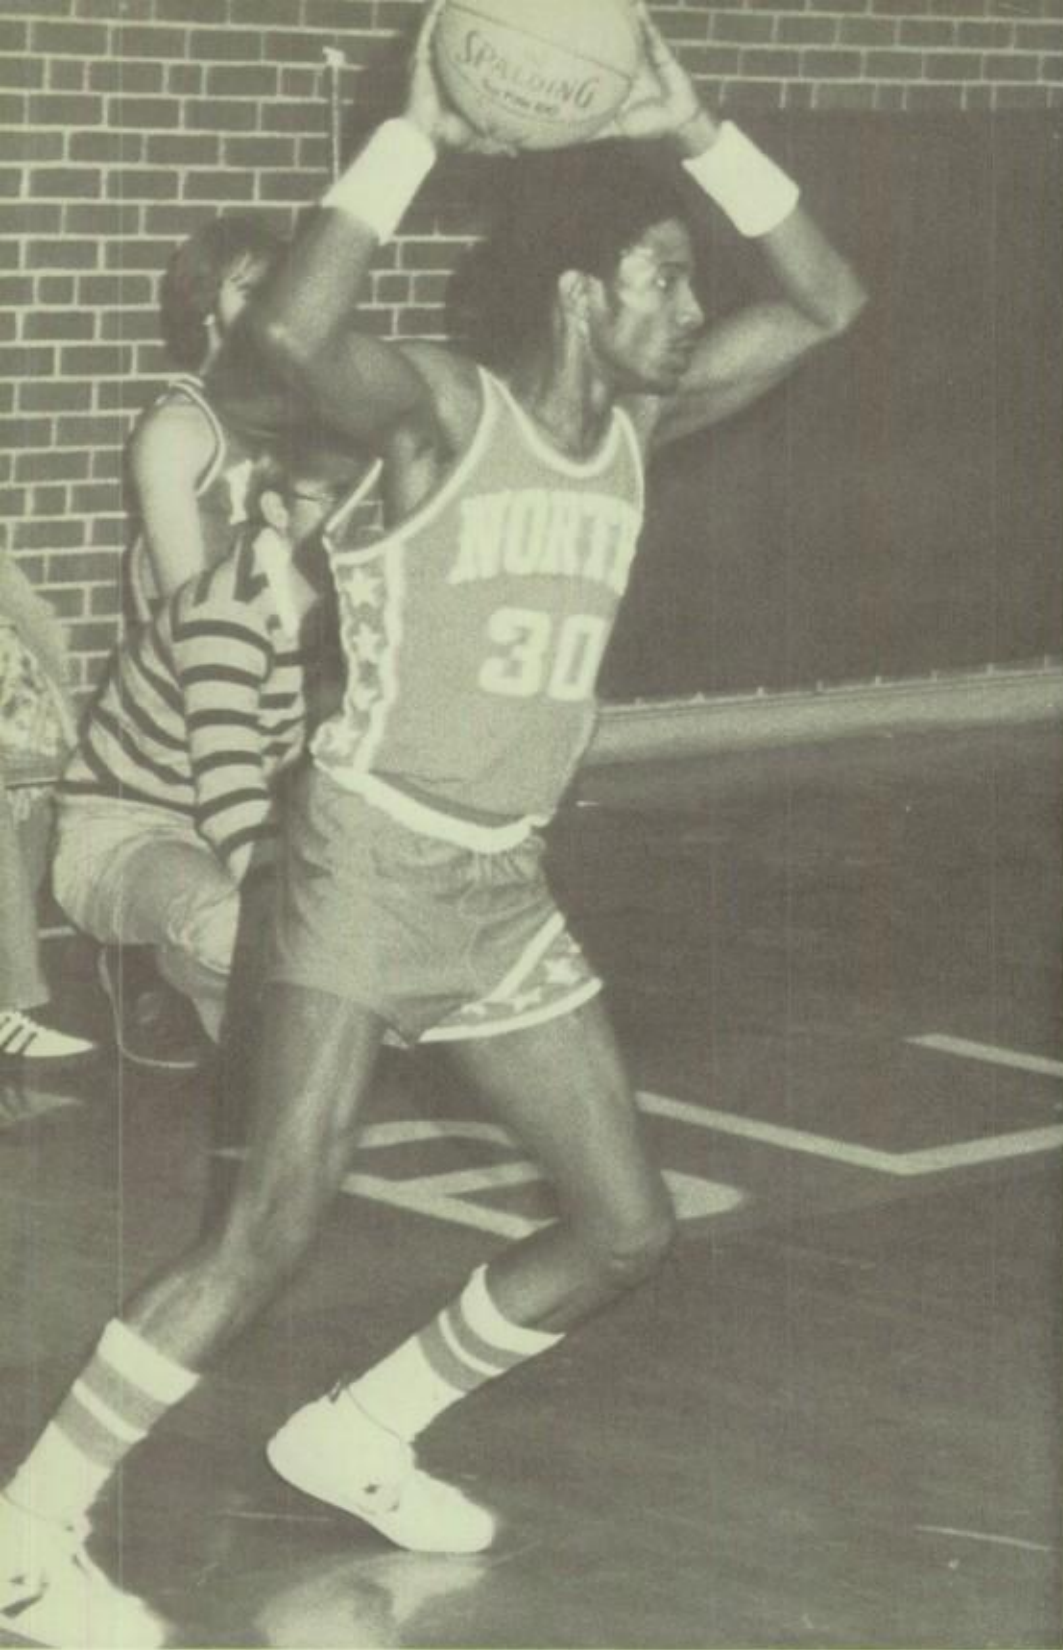

AFS serves to bring people closer together and for Lee Ann, this motto has certainly been accomplished.

Cynosura Staff

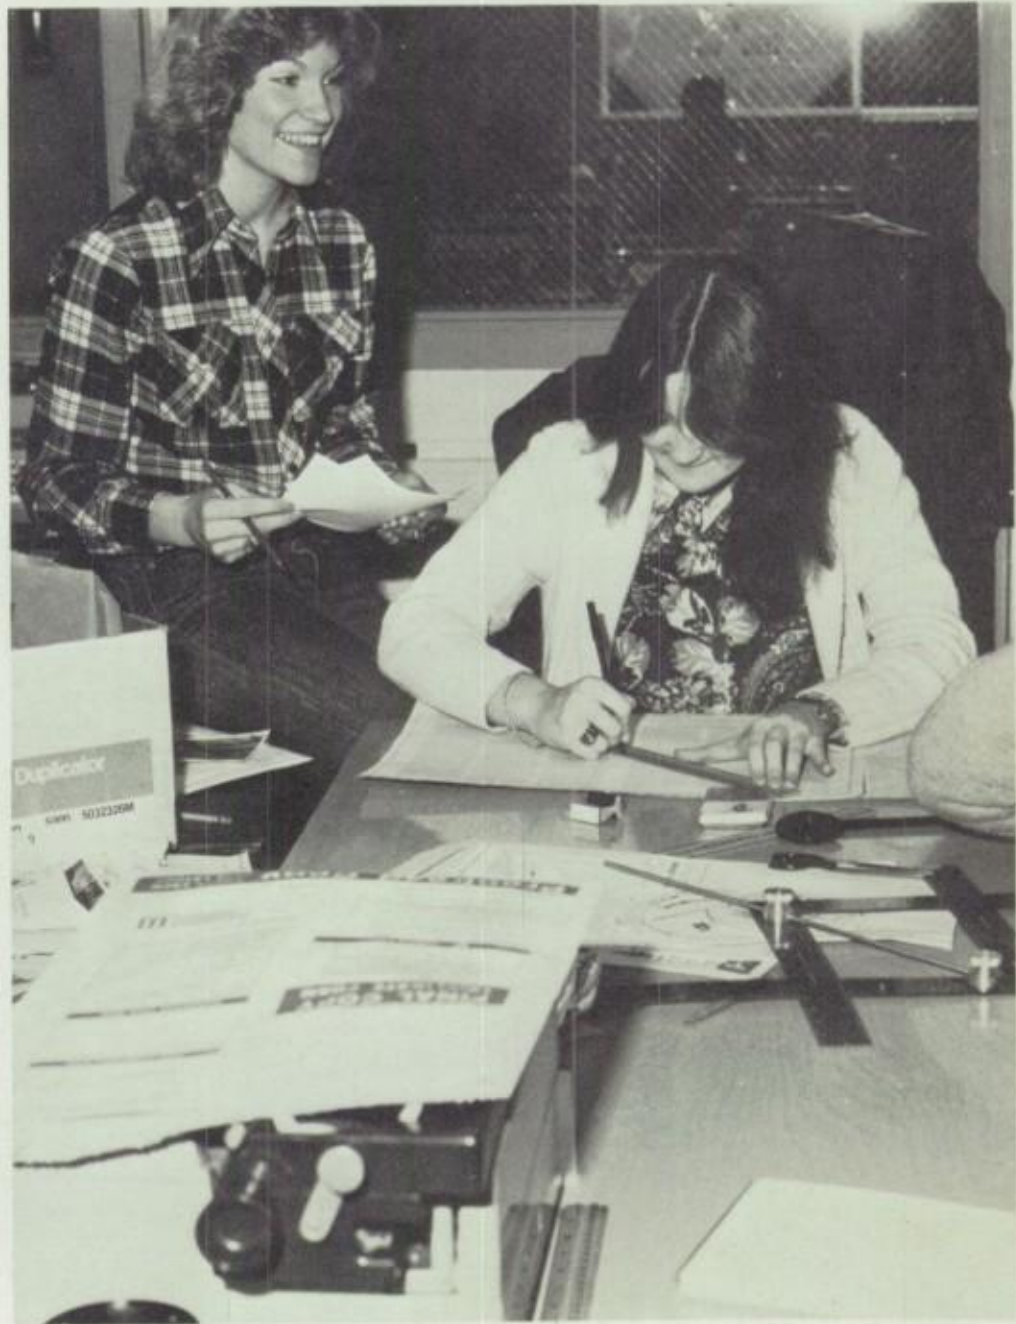

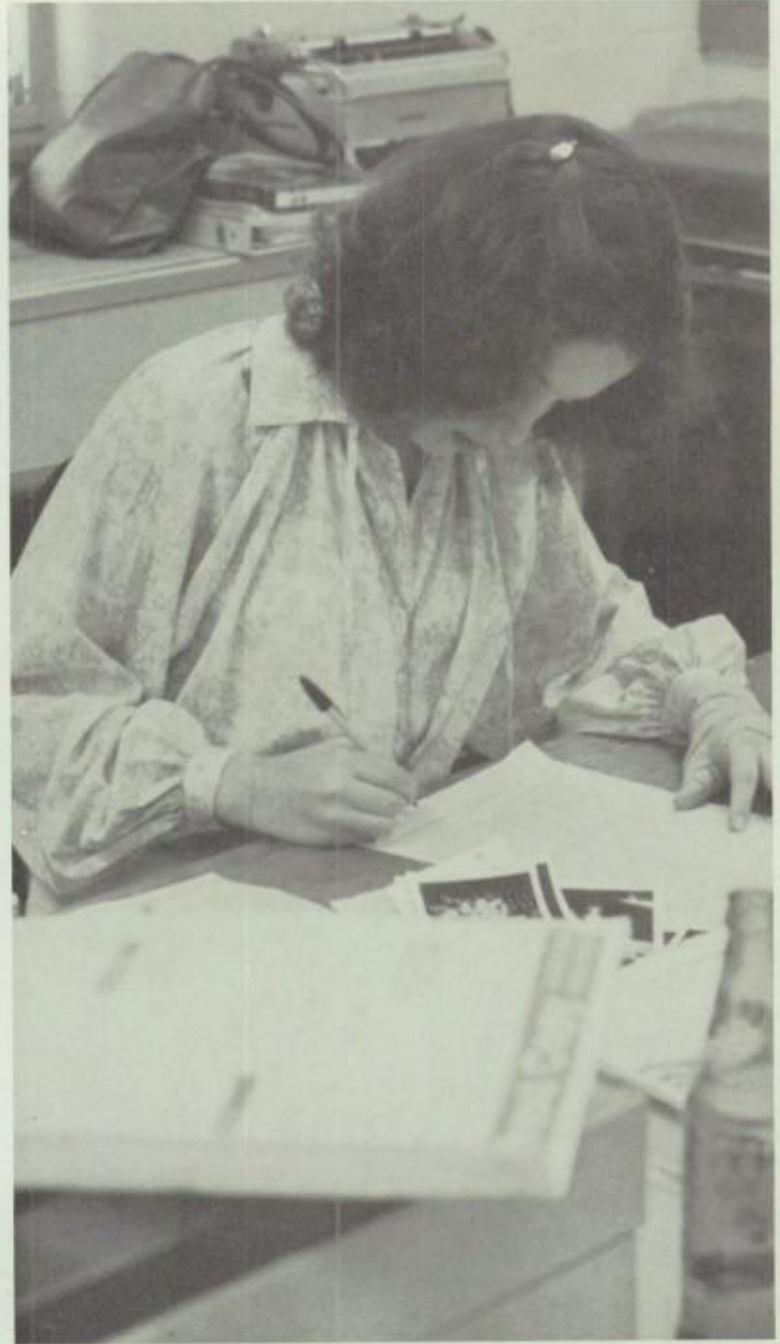

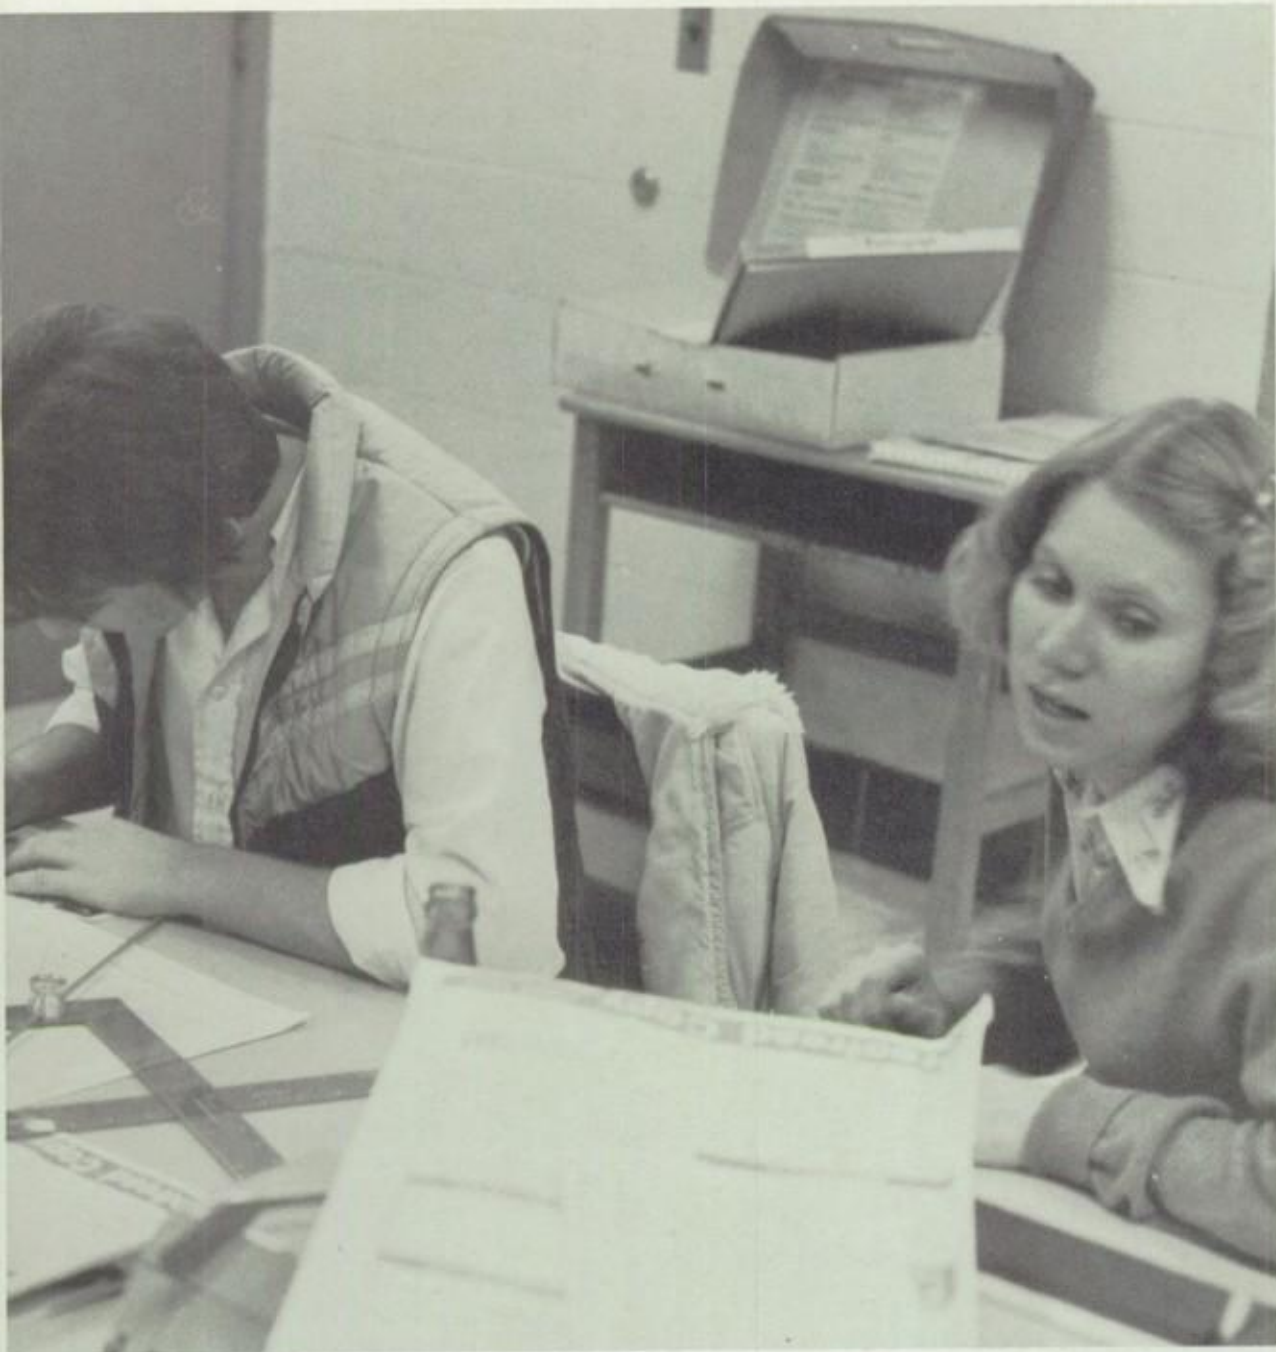

Staff members include: Todd Isenhour, Anita Galliher, April Sprinkle, Amy Gilleland, Sandra Godfrey, Lisa Crawford, Trent Poole, Dawn Feimster, Kim Sprinkle, Sandra Lambert, Marcella Tutterrow Reavis, Jackie Templeton, Jackie Fox, and Wendy Hinson. Advisers are: Mr. Steven Stobbe, Mr. Jerry Eades, and Mrs. Debra Miller.

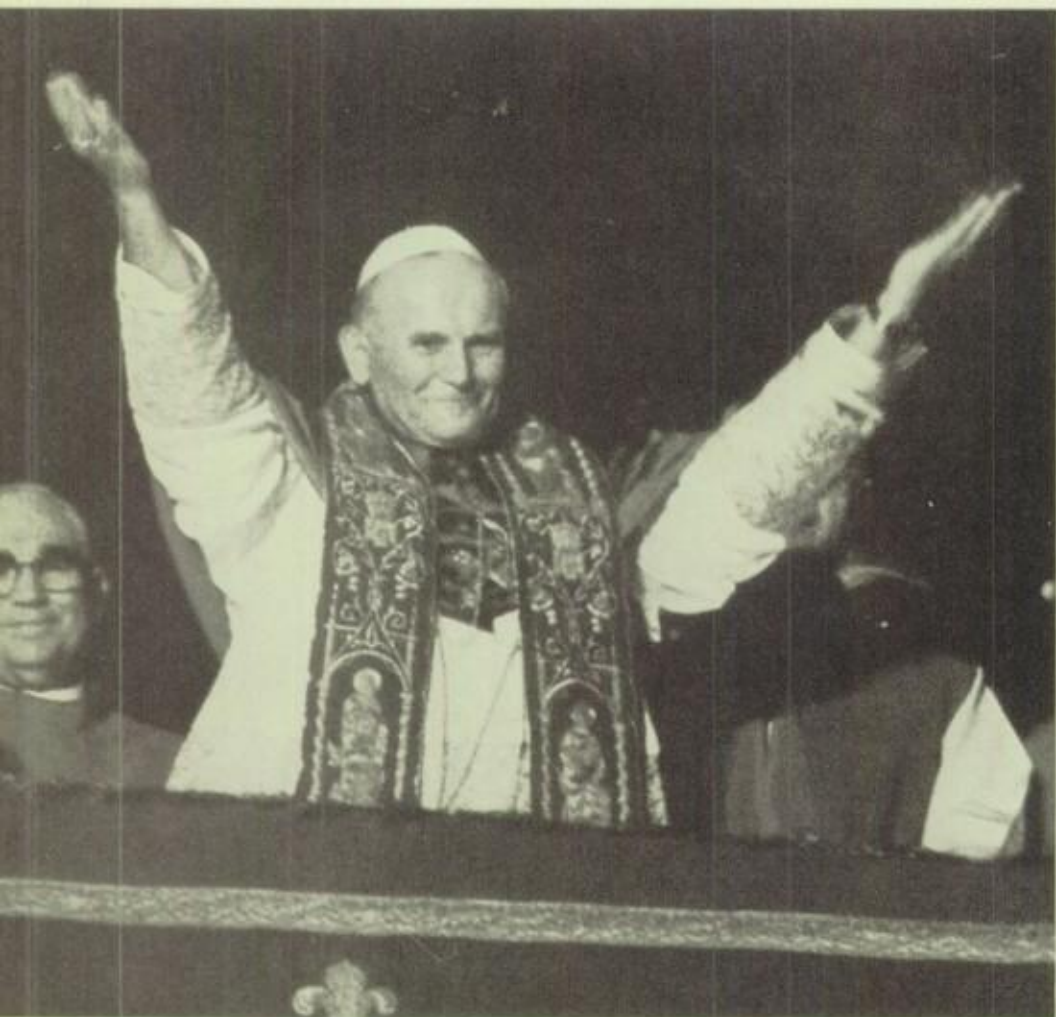

As we write this, the last copy for the 1979 Cynosura, another volume is being laid to rest. We trust it will arrive on time safe and sound. We hope you will enjoy this book not only now but in years to come as you look back from time to time and live again the moments we have tried to capture here. North High is truly a world within a world. What activity is there that does not or has not occurred here? We share moments of sadness, pain, defeat, and failure but also many moments of happiness, cooperation, victory, success, tenderness and love. Remember, with us, these last moments and live them again as you read this book. We know we have missed some people and some events; for this we ask forgiveness; we did not do it intentionally, but we believe that this book, your book now for we are finished with it, is a reasonably accurate rendering of 1978-79 at North Iredell High School. To all of you let us say thank you for sharing a part of your life with us.

We wish to thank the people whose names appear above for their help in the production of this book. Others whose help must be specifically acknowledged here include: Ms Arvilla Brewer for photography and darkroom work, Mrs. Jane Barron for teaching an extra English class, Mr. Jerry Eades and Mr. Roger Drum for rescuing this yearbook (and this writer) from a furious blizzard, Mr. Kenneth Wilson for agreeing to everything, Miss Penny Ross for much hard work done selflessly with little thanks and finally Mrs. Debra Miller for (what can we say?) working miracles. To all others, and there are so many others, who helped or showed concern, we say thank you.

None of the rustic island-people know:
'Tis not a tower of strength, though with its height
It overtops the woods; but, for delight,
Some wise and tender Ocean-King, ere crime
Had been invented, in the world's young prime,
Reared it, a wonder of that simple time,
An envy of the isles, a pleasure-house
Made sacred to his sister and his spouse.
It scarce seems now a wreck of human art,
But, as it were Titanic; in the heart
Of Earth having assumed its form, then grown
Out of the mountains, from the living stone,
Lifting itself in caverns light and high:
For all the antique and learned imagery
Has been erased, and in the place of it
The ivy and the wild-vine interknit
The volumes of their many-twining stems;
Parasite flowers illumine with dewy gems
The lampless halls, and when they fade, the sky
Peeps through their winter-woof of tracery
With moonlight patches, or star atoms keen,
Or fragments of the day's intense serene;
Working mosaic on their Parian floors.
And, day and night, aloof, from the high towers
And terraces, the Earth and Ocean seem
To sleep in one another's arms, and dream
Of waves, flowers, clouds, woods, rocks, and all that we
Read in their smiles, and call reality.

This isle and house are mine, and I have vowed
Thee to be lady of the solitude.—
And I have fitted up some chambers there
Looking towards the golden Eastern air,
And level with the living winds, which flow
Like waves above the living waves below.—
I have sent books and music there, and all
Those instruments with which high Spirits call
The future from its cradle, and the past
Out of its grave, and make the present last
In thoughts and joys which sleep, but cannot die,
Folded within their own eternity.

Our simple life wants little, and true taste
Hires not the pale drudge Luxury, to waste
The scene it would adorn, and therefore still,
Nature with all her children haunts the hill.
The ring-dove, in the embowering ivy, yet
Keeps up her low lament, and the cuckoo the

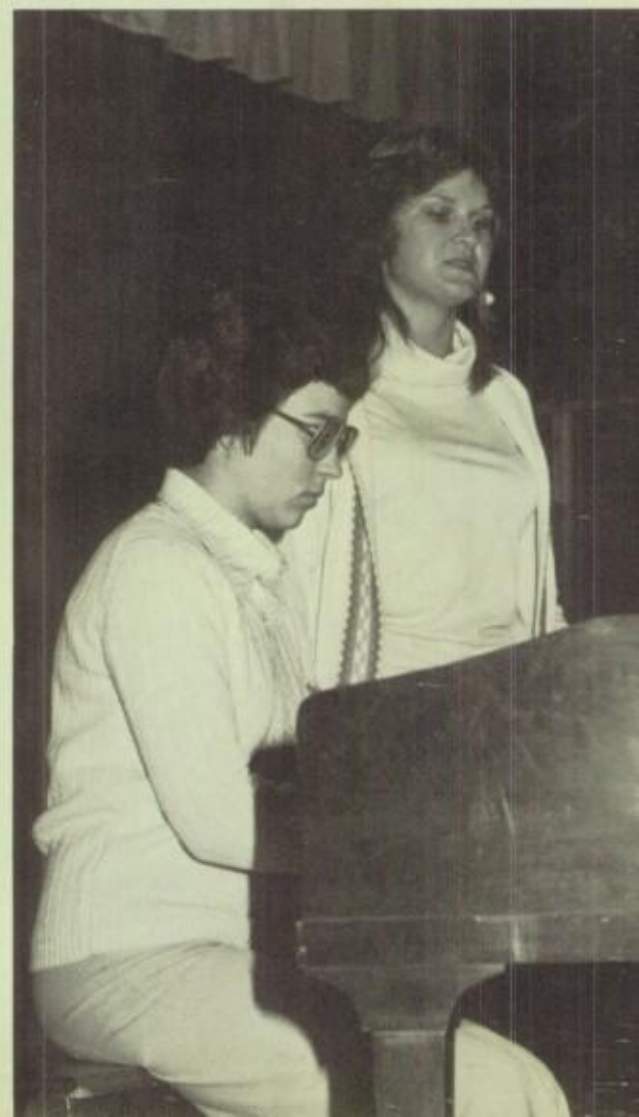

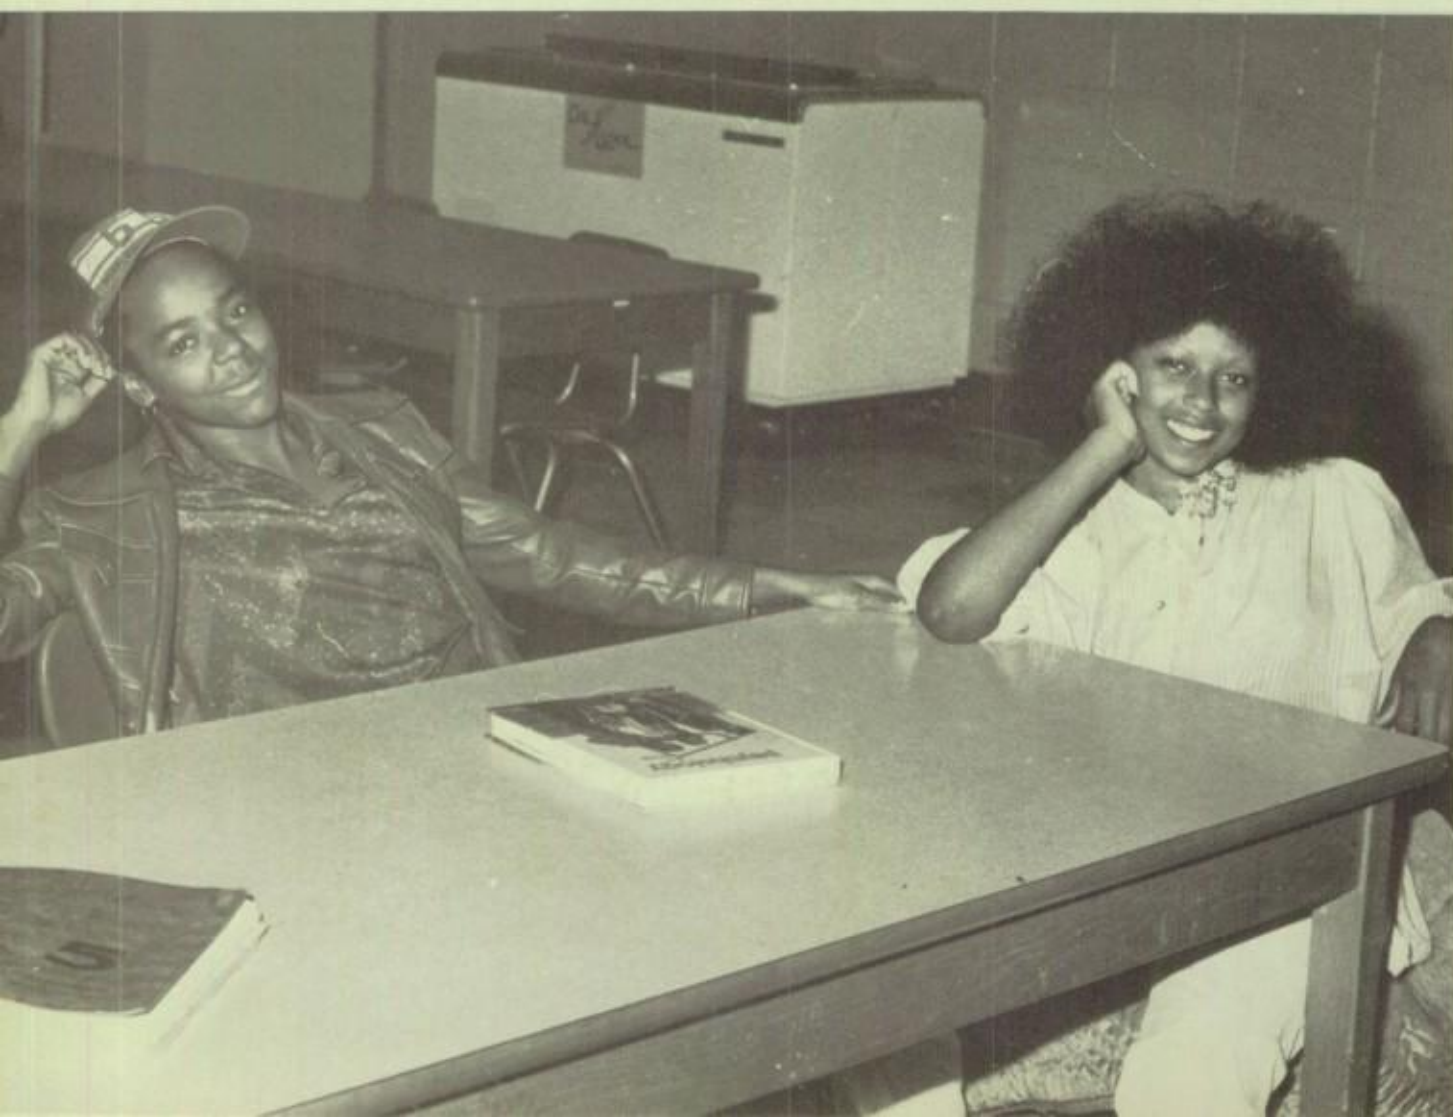

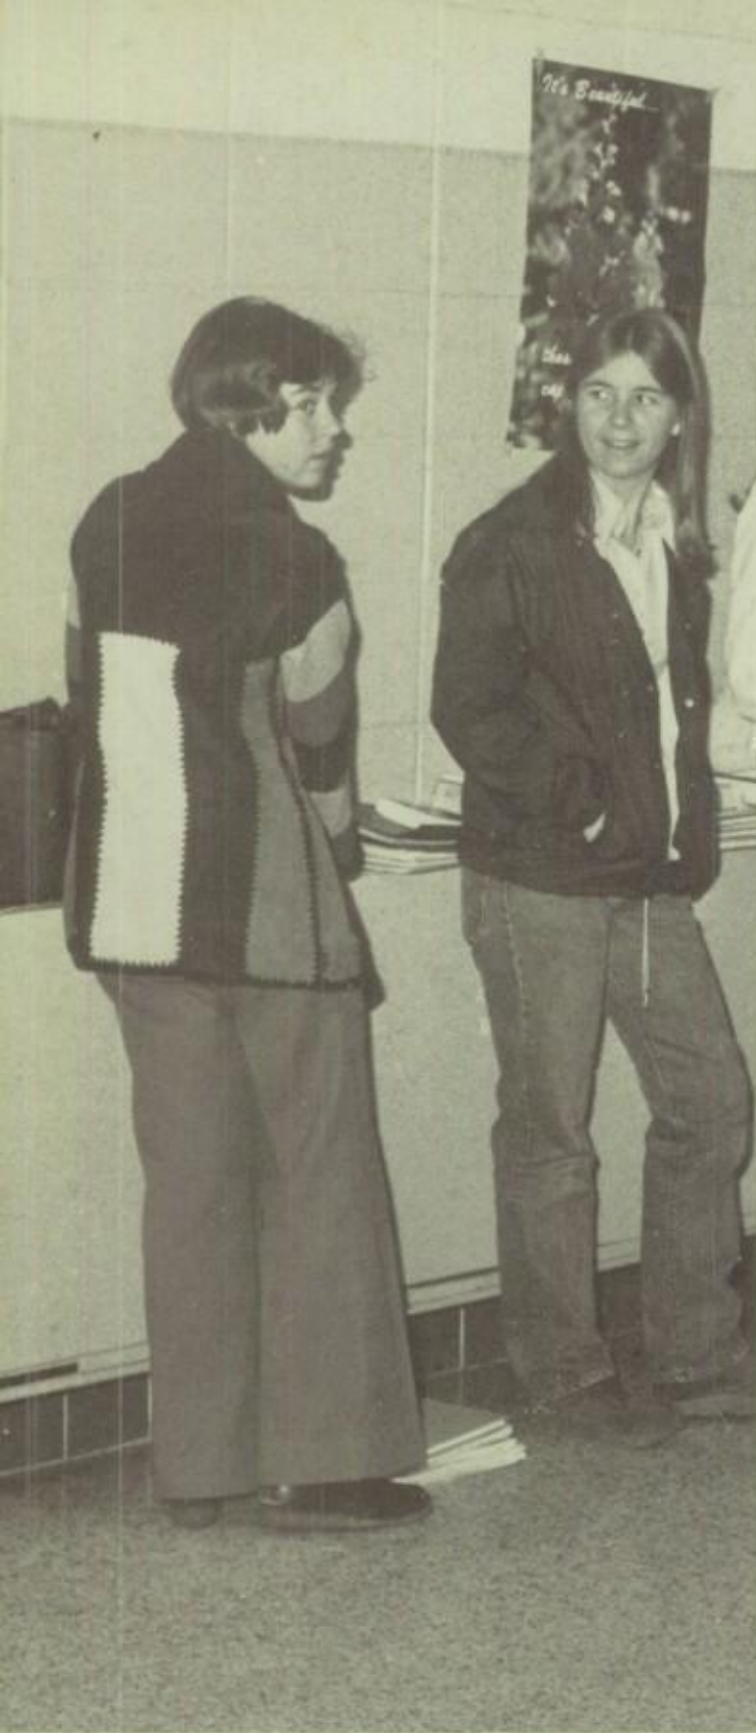

Round the evening tower, and the young stars glance
Between the quick bats in their twilight dance;
The spotted deer bask in the fresh moonlight
Before our gate, and the slow, silent night
Is measured by the pants of their calm sleep.
Be this our home in life, and when years heap
Their withered hours, like leaves, on our decay,
Let us become the overhanging day,
The living soul of this Elysian isle,
Conscious, inseparable, one. Meanwhile
We two will rise, and sit, and walk together
Under the roof of blue Ionian weather
And wander in the meadows, or ascend
The mossy mountains, where the blue heavens bend
With lightest winds, to touch their paramour;
Or linger, where the pebble-paven shore,
Under the quick, faint kisses of the sea
Trembles and sparkles as with ecstasy,— Ponering and possessed by all that is
Within that calm circumference of bliss,
And by each other, till to love and live
Be one:—or, at the noontide hour, arrive
Where some old cavern hoar seems yet to keep
The moonlight of the expired night asleep,
Through which the awakened day can never peep;
A veil for our seclusion, close as night's,
Where secure sleep may kill thine innocent lights;
Sleep, the fresh dew of languid love, the rain
Whose drops quench kisses till they burn again.
And we will talk, until thought's melody
Become too sweet for utterance, and it die
In words, to live again in looks, which dart
With thrilling tone into the voiceless heart,
Harmonizing silence without a sound.
Our breath shall intermix, our bosoms bound,
And our veins beat together; and our lips
With other eloquence than words, eclipse
The soul that burns betwixt them, and the wells
Which boil under our being's inmost cells,
The fountains of our deepest life, shall be Confused in Passion's golden purity.
As mountain-springs under the morning sun.
We shall become the same, we shall be one
Spirit within two frames, oh! wherefore two?
One passion in twin-hearts, which grows and grew,
Till like two meteors of expanding flame,
Those spheres instinct with it become the same,

be called the beautiful and the good. The more to be desired than at periods when, from calculating principle, the accumulation of the quantity of the power of assimilating them nature. The body has then become too unwieldy divine. It is at once the centre and circumference which comprehends all science, and that to which it is at the same time the root and blossom of all is that from which all spring, and that which is blighted, denies the fruit and the seed, and world the nourishment and the succession of the perfect and consummate surface and bloom of the colour of the rose to the texture of the elements and the splendour of unfaded beauty to the nation. What were virtue, love, patriotism, friendship of this beautiful universe which we inhabit; what side of the grave, and what were our aspirations ascend to bring light and fire from those eternal faculty of calculation dare not ever soar? Poetry is to be exerted according to the determination say, 'I will compose poetry.' The greatest poet and in creation is as a fading coal, which some constant wind, awakens to transitory brightness: like the colour of a flower which fades and and the conscious portions of our natures are reach or its departure. Could this influence be and force, it is impossible to predict the greatness hands in formation is incapable of accounting for the best minds. We are aware of evanescent visitations, sometimes associated with place or person, sometimes rising alone, and always arising unforeseen and departing and delightful beyond all expression: so that even in the they leave, there cannot but be pleasure, participating as of its object. It is as it were the interpenetration of a dream our own; but its footsteps are like those of a wind or coming calm erases, and whose traces remain only, as which paves it. These and corresponding conditions of imagination; and the state of mind produced by them base desire. The enthusiasm of virtue, love, patriotism essentially linked with these emotions; and whilst they what it is, an atom to a universe. Poets are not only substances as spirits of the most refined organization, but they combine with the evanescent hues of this ethereal trait in the representation of a scene or a passion, will chord, and reanimate, in those who have ever experienced the sleeping, the cold, the buried image of the past. For mortal all that is best and most beautiful in the world; apparitions which haunt the interlunations of life, and language or in form, sends them forth among mankind, kindred joy to those with whom their sisters abide—a no portal of expression from the caverns of the spirit within the universe of things.
